It is said that the best sensitivity setting is something that is created by you. What if you cannot create your own or you don't have time to create one? Well in that case you can follow my sensitivity which I am using and working perfectly for me. If you are playing pubg mobile on an Android then your recoil will not be the same as you have seen of your favorite YouTuber. You might say why? Because most of those YouTubers are playing on iPhone. There is no doubt that the gyroscope of the iPhone is better than any android available in the market. That difference is not that big because if you practice well you can control your recoil like them or maybe better than them who knows. Currently, I am playing on Xiaomi Mi 10T and I am pretty much good at controlling recoil. I am currently playing competitive as well as High-Rank conqueror lobby and my sensitivity never let me down. I have uploaded a video in which you can see my 4x and 6x sprays. If you want to see sensitivity settings in a video then I'll embed a video at the end of the video.

Before I share my own sensitivity to you I want to answer a most asked question. What is the best Gyro or without gyro? Let's just not confuse you and give you a straight answer that Gyroscope is way better than the non-gyro. Why I said that is because gyroscope will improve your reflexes in long-range as well as in close range. It's easy to shake your phone instead of scrolling your fingers or thumb on the screen. There are players which are the best in the world and playing the international tournaments and are non-gyro players but compared to gyroscope players they are few. Almost 90% of good players are gyro players. Let's jump into my sensitivity settings on my Android Device Mi 10T.
